Mr. DePasquale, commented, "We look forward to networking with potential partners and strategic investors at DealFlow's Microcap Conference. BIO-key's Q3'24 revenues rose 18% to $2.1M principally due to higher software license revenue related to long-term customers. To support accelerating growth, we have been pursuing strategic collaborations that position our solutions for exciting new use cases, such as our recent agreement with Fiber Food Systems, Inc. which is focused on global food security, innovative food-technology, and producing high-demand consumer products and plant-based proteins. This collaboration combines BIO-key's expertise in secure, scalable, and versatile IAM solutions with Fiber's know-how and presence in food distribution channels.

"We also announced a planned partnership with Guinn Partners, an advanced engineering solutions provider for robotics, drones, and electric propulsion systems. We intend to demonstrate how biometric security can enhance the safety and functionality of complex systems for Guinn and its expanding customer base, and we continue to explore additional strategic partnership opportunities in other growth markets."

About The Microcap Conference and DealFlow Events (<https://themicrocapconference.com>)

Organized by DealFlow Events, the 3-day Microcap Conference features publicly-traded microcaps and qualified private companies across various high-growth sectors, and no invitation is required. The event offers a platform for companies to showcase their value propositions through presentations, one-on-one meetings, interactive sessions and networking opportunities.
